

Pole Frame Magic: Bringing Awareness Into Architecture

Houses that nurtures the spirit. A leading Australian designer of pole frame houses shares his 35 years of experience and his technical knowledge of this unique form of domestic architecture and construction. The author shows how, by expanded awareness of what we are doing, we can achieve the best outcomes for ourselves and for the environment. The book deals with the practical considerations of design and construction, and also the vibrational influences that affect our sense of well being. These influences include choices of materials and their sourcing, geometric form, energy efficiency and environmental issues. The techniques described are intended for owner builders and professional builders with no previous experience of this format. It is a form of design and construction that can be both cost effective and inspirational, and within reach of most aspiring home owners. The book shows how the principles that apply to creating a nurturing dwelling can also be applied to leading a fulfilling life. It includes several entertaining accounts written by some of the authors clients that describe their sense of achievement and personal growth. The e-book contains 135 images that will appear in color on some e-readers,
