

London: Sight Unseen

Go beyond Buckingham Palace and uncover the delights of over 120 unique London buildings captured by one of the great photographers of the 20th century. Lord Snowden has traversed the city, taking pictures that are evocative, intriguing and inspiring. The result is a tour of Londons architecture that reveals the unexpected, the unusual and the largely unseen. He takes you to a boathouse thats the epitome of Georgian elegance tucked away on the banks of the Thames and a staircase that rises from a mooring in front of the Houses of Parliament with a sentry box at the top. And, on Old Brompton Road, visit a humble cottage that presents a cheerful face to the world, painted in a sunny yellow color. How these structures came to be built and for whom and when, is also engagingly told.
